

'Giraffes' author donates to Driscoll Children's Hospital

Debra Young Hatch, author of "Giraffes in my Closet," presented a $2,000 check from the proceeds of her book sales to Driscoll Children's Hospital.

It was the first installment from For Kids' Sake Publishing, Inc., a Corpus Christi-based children's book publishing company, on its mission to donate book sale proceeds to benefit children struggling with long-term health issues.

"That mission is that each book published is dedicated to a child who is living with a long-term health struggle," said Hatch, For Kids' Sake publisher/author. "What that means is part of the proceeds from the sale of each book go to a hospital or an organization that helps other children with similar ongoing health issues."

"Giraffes in My Closet" is dedicated to 7-year-old Heath Naumann, who has had multiple heart surgeries.

"Everyone who purchased a book is an integral part of this gift," Hatch said.

Kathy Kramer, Driscoll gift shop manager (from left), Debra Young Hatch and Dr. Garbine Goya, pediatric cardiologist
CONTRIBUTED PHOTO